Good morning, everyone! Today, we're going to discuss the importance of maintaining a healthy lifestyle. In this regard, I would like to highlight the benefits of a well-rounded fitness routine, which includes a combination of cardiovascular exercise, strength training, and flexibility exercises. By incorporating these elements into your daily routine, you can achieve optimal physical fitness and improve your overall well-being.

Cardiovascular exercise is essential for maintaining a healthy heart and circulatory system. Activities such as jogging, cycling, and swimming are great options for increasing heart rate and improving cardiovascular endurance. Strength training, on the other hand, helps build and maintain muscle mass and bone density. Incorporating weightlifting exercises and bodyweight workouts into your routine can significantly enhance your muscular strength and overall fitness.

Finally, flexibility exercises are crucial for maintaining joint mobility and reducing the risk of injury. Activities such as yoga, stretching, and pilates can help improve your flexibility and range of motion. By combining these three elements into a balanced fitness program, you can achieve a holistic approach to health and wellness.

In conclusion, maintaining a healthy lifestyle through a combination of cardiovascular exercise, strength training, and flexibility exercises is essential for overall well-being. By incorporating these elements into your daily routine, you can achieve optimal physical fitness and improve your quality of life. Thank you for your attention, and I look forward to your questions and insights.
There’s a New Sheriff(s) In Town

Dear Reader:

So it looks like the old editors decided to be pricks and graduate. It turns out that they had done some bullshit loophole thing and “completed their core requirements with a minimum grand point average of 2.0.” Well I say, fuck that noise. Have fun with the rest of your life: decorating your cubicles with “For Better or For Worse” cartoons and seriously considering flood insurance. Maybe you’ll see me out the greasy little window of your office building, both doing and eating donuts in the parking lot and blasting Blink 182. Not that I even like Blink 182. It’s just that you’d be too old to understand it.

Anyway, what this means for you the reader is that the magazine will be changing hands. But it doesn’t have to be a scary thing. I know you were with the old editors for a long time, but I think that we can have just as much fun together, if not more! You like video games? I like video games, too! You want to go to Hurricane Harbor? Unlike that bitch Mom of yours, I’ll take you there on weekends. You won’t have to worry around me, I’ll be like the cool editor. Want a cigarette?

Just so you know what you’ll be getting into, here’s a list of some of the transitions we plan on implementing this year:

- Changing the Squelch constitution from endorsing sexual harassment to expressing our indifference towards it.
- Hazing is a barbaric practice that should have been abandoned years ago. It will be dropped as soon as the ASUC OKs our constitution changes in January. Hang in there, newbies!
- The magazine, if ingested, will no longer immediately produce violent diarrhea.
- Due to a pending lawsuit, we will now be allowing black students on the staff. Sorry it took so long, guys!
- We’ve switched from employing monkeys on typewriters to Malaysian children on Apple II’s. They’re really finding their voices.

We look forward to entertaining you this year, please loosen our shackles. Ow! Stop whipping me!

Federal Trade Commission Starts, Ends Google Anti-trust Suit

By DAILYSQUELCH.COM, synergy mah bitches

WASHINGTON, D.C. (DS) - On the cusp of Google's planned buyout of DoubleClick, the online advertising industry's leading ad-seller, the Federal Trade Commission has both opened and closed its antitrust suit directed at the world's top search engine.

“As Google has already purchased numerous smaller online advertising firms, we at the Federal Trade, er, uhhh,” stammered FTC Chairman Deborah Majoras as a Google intern in the audience held aloft posterboard reading, “Recent searches: pre-nup divorce hitman shemale prostitute.”

A representative from the Department of Justice followed in the press conference, stating that, “To let one company dominate the future medium of advertising is both unjust and immoral.” The press conference ended abruptly when an unnamed reporter suffered a violent coughing fit, his coughs sounding remarkably like the words, “transformers,” and “erotic fanfiction.”

When asked for comment, Google CEO Larry Page replied, “Oh, hey Candice. How’s Valtrex working for you?” Then he laughed long and hard.

Alan Greenspan Pretty Sure New Best Friend is Actually CNN Obituary Writer

By DAILYSQUELCH.COM, Web 7.0

VIRGINIA (DS) - Former Federal Reserve Chairman Alan Greenspan has recently been seen visiting various parks, zoos, and other relaxing locations with a new best friend. But the 81-year-old’s joy at finding a new chum has been marred by suspicion after discovering that his friend, James Marston, is the lead obituary writer for CNN.com.

“Well, I don’t meet a lot of people, being as old as I am, and I was so happy to meet this nice young man in the park,” said a genial Greenspan in an interview on his porch where he dispenses home-spun economic wisdom to neighborhood children. “But then I started noticing, James keeps bringing a notebook wherever we go, and he’s always writing down things I say, and once I coughed real hard and he leaned in real close like he was waiting for something.”

When confronted, Mr. Marston assured Mr. Greenspan that there was nothing false or sinister about their relationship and the two shared a hearty hug. “Your friendship just means so much to me,” said Marston, before clapping and screaming “BOO!” directly into Mr. Greenspan’s face.

Bratz ARG Nears Finale

_Hundreds of thousands of teenage girls descended on a remote area of Saskatchewan on Tuesday, in preparation for the finale of the popular, complex Alternate Reality Game promoting the movie “Bratz.”_

The ARG began over six months ago, when the Bratz trailer was first screened before “Kickin’ It Old Skool” with Jamie Kennedy.

“Stacy and I loved the part where the mean girl was thrown in the pool and screamed ‘You Bratz!’” said 13-year old Ashley Richardson. “Then a phrase flashed on the screen, and I said, ‘oh my god, I think that was Ancient Sumerian.’”

Decoding the message lead the two, and millions of other young girls, into a complex web of mysterious websites, numerological puzzles, and painstaking analysis of DNA/RNA patterns. The community started collaborative MySpace groups and donated the use of billions of supercomputer time cycles. The resulting plaintext, once translated from the Aramaic, told the story of Heather, a fish-out-of-water young girl plunked into a new stepfamily where no one understood her.

“I remember when we solved the Orion Belt puzzle, and it led us to a Forever 21 website with a coupon for 10% off,” said 14-year old Lindsey McDonald. “I was crushed, but then Becky said to look more closely at the cute knit top with the strange black and white pattern.”

“It was the Fibonacci sequence, only with every third number removed,” Lindsey said. “Chapter Three had just begun.”

Legal filings obtained by players with Lawyer Daddies point to a mysterious organization known as the DollMasters behind the Game, which has been nicknamed “Red Dog” by avid players.

The recent resolution of the SETI puzzle led players to a simple webpage with a set of GPS coordinates pointing to Northern Canada and a timer countdown.

“We think it'll finally resolve if Heather dates her best friend or abandons him for the hot-but-mean football player,” said a shivering Rory Tesota. “Or maybe it'll just lead us down this rabbit hole a little deeper.”

“Hyphy Movement” Meets Hyphy Resistance, Thousands Dead

_By Owen Javellana, high on life_

The infectious spread of a popular Bay Area-based hip-hop genre, known as the Hyphy Movement, escalated to a bloody climax yesterday, as tensions between extremist Pro-Hyphy Reformers and Purist Anti-Hyphy Resistance erupted in brutal combat. Surviving eyewitnesses report that Anti-Hyphy Guerilla Insurgents ambushed the Hyphy Movement’s Honor Guard Battalion as they ghost-rid their whips into rebel territory, hoping to convert the natives to their cause.

“If Our Glorious Hyphy Revolution is ever to enlighten the non-believers of the world, we must maintain tactical momentum and crush the Underground Anti-Hyphy Dissenters. Any more Hyphy Failures like yesterday’s Hyphy Massacre and the Movement will suffer hella consequences, yadadamean?” said Curtis Green, Berkeley High School sophomore.

Hearing this, many Bay Area residents replied, “...What?”

Failed Biopics

An Ironclad Chicken-Coop: the Strom Thurmond Story

Starring The Rock as Young Strom and A Wrinkly Leather Puppet as Old Strom
Tagline: “Great times make great oldest men in the world.”
Chronicles subject’s harrowing struggle against: African-American Nurse Clementine.
Authentic dialogue:
Thurmond: “Clementine, you biscuit-headed mongrel-cow. Bring your Nubian rump into the conservatory at once, before I have it stuffed and mounted like the common hippopotamus you are!”
Clementine: “Fuck this, I quit.”
Thurmond: [dies]
Film ends when: Strom’s death brings about a wave of nostalgic racism throughout the South.

Free Mumia: The “Free Mumia” Story

Starring Malcolm Jamal-Warner as Mumia
Tagline: “The amazing true story of Mumia, an innocent Black Panther out for a stroll who witnessed a cop shoot himself five times in the face. Also, coincidentally, the cop had just shot Mumia’s brother. Also then Mumia picked up the cop’s gun and shot himself with it. Also he had powder burns.”
Chronicle’s subject’s harrowing struggle against: Own Alleged Demons.
Authentic dialogue:
Mumia: Scrappy, I need you to be strong and listen to me for a while, okay? Some people think I did a bad thing, so I’ll have to go away for a while. I need you to take these books to the homeless shelter for me.
Scrappy the Orphan: Oh my gosh! What do they think you did?
Mumia: They… They think I shot a white police officer five times.
Scrappy the Orphan: But you love white police officers!
Mumia: I know, it’s crazy. I forgive them though, they’re just doing their jobs.
Scrappy the Orphan: But who will volunteer at the abused dog shelter with me?
Mumia: I don’t know, Scrappy. I just don’t know.
Film ends when: Mumia dies for our sins. As he ascends to heaven, all white people become black for a day.

Beelzebooze: the Stephen Baldwin Story

Starring Billy Baldwin as Stephen Baldwin
Tagline: “You can’t drink a Bible.”
Chronicles subject’s harrowing struggle against: Alcoholism, Retarded-Looking Face
Authentic dialogue:
Stephen: (praying) “Okay, Lord. Guide my hand. I sort of quit all the drinking like you requested, and I even made a Christian skateboarding team, which I’m sure you’ll find awesome in a most extreme way. Now please. What am I to do now?”
Jesus: “Star in some movies about giant snakes for a while.”
Stephen: “Righteous!”
Film ends when: Stephen triumphs over his alcoholism long enough to victoriously star as Barney Rubble in a straight-to-DVD Flintstones movie again.

“So why are you here?”

“I hear... I hear you know computers. I've got electronic mail to send to my grandson. But I'm scared and confused.”

“Say no more.”

Walter powered up the desktop of his gleaming new Apple II. As if cured suddenly of arthritis, his fingers flew across the keyboard, effortlessly opening the icons. He was double, even triple-clicking. Soon the internet command prompt screen was in view, ready for the street address of the website.

“You got onto the Internet without a password?” asked Edith, wowed by the technical wizardry before her.

Walter took a drag from his Meerschaum pipe. “That's right. I'm a hacker. Folks in the cyber-land call me MetaMucil.”

Just then, Edith realized what she was getting into.

“You're not worried they'll catch you?”

“There's no way. I'm running on five operating systems.”

Walter then dragged the “cursor” over Edith's poem about Jesus onto the web's page and quickly pressed a combination of buttons on the computer’s typewriter.

“You weren't followed here, were you?” he said suddenly, affixing her with eyes that had seen so much.

“No. I took back routes, deserted ones. Accidentally drove very slowly past the place a couple times.”

Opening up a second “window,” Walter tapped a second combination, causing the exact poem to appear once again.

“What else can you do on the Interface?” she asked, her eyes betraying her increasing nervousness and rheumatism.

“Whatever you want, dearie. MIDI of Camptown Races? Two clicks, and bam, it's there. Pictures of the cutest cats you've ever seen? Just six URLs away.”

Suddenly, another window popped up on the screen with the mysterious and foreboding title of “AIM Conversation - ~BaBy-gUrl-819~ 10:19 AM.”

Damn, thought Walter, we've been counter-hacked.

“We got trouble, Edith. Someone's on to us... and they don't like what we're doing.” Sweat trickled down Walter's normally cool brow as he read the window’s cryptic message:

~BaBy-gUrl-819~ (10:19:20)
: Hey there stud. Wanna chat some time? Check out my page here. I'll be waiting...;)

Edith was visibly shaken. “What does it mean, Walter? What does it mean?”

“It's code. Probably the feds. There's no time to build a firewall, I'm just going to have to fight this virus head on.”

As the clock rushed, Walter typed as hard as he could, hitting every possible combination of the control key and a letter in a matter of minutes. The window finally disappeared behind another window informing him that updates were available for his computer.

“We're in the clear,” he sighed.

After Walter finished typing Edith's grandson's full name into the “Send To” form on the e-mailing website and hit the enter key, he turned to her.

“Now. There's the little matter of payment.”

Edith, eager to escape Walter's den of inter-crime, plunked down the jar of pennies and headed for the door.

Diary of a White Collar Criminal

February 2001 – Big Promotion
I may not have one of those fancy "MBAs" or "GEDs" but if there’s one thing I do know, it’s landscape architecture. Wait, I mean business. That’s right, I just became CEO. Who’s an accident now, Dad?

March 2001 – Perks
Those first couple hours as CEO were pretty stressful. I decided to reward myself with a corporate jet flight to the 7-11 down the street. While I was circling overhead waiting for them to build the runway, I ordered a pizza to be delivered in-flight. You know what they say: gotta spend money to make money.

April 2001 – Energy Business
At work today, I used the terms ‘trunkbutt,’ ‘shitworm,’ and ‘cock juggling thunder cunt’ twelve times. And all of them were directed at people I was giving a bonus. Man, I am so drunk off power I can’t stop vomiting bourbon.

August 2001 – Resignation
Turned in the old resignation. Wanted to spend more time with the kids in a country with weak extradition laws.

February 2004 – Indictment
When I got the subpoena on Monday I knew someone had ratted me out. Someone close to me. Probably someone I’ve been sleeping with. I’m looking at you, sacks of shareholders’ money.

October 2006 – Sentencing
Sauntered/was-carted into court like a man of taste and decency. Judge wanted to give me 24 years. I demanded he sentence me a martini. He won.

October 2006 – Prison
Met my new cellmate, Mad Dog (might be one word). He’s an accountant that got nailed for tax fraud. Seems like a nice enough chap, if a little rapey.

December 2006 – More Prison
I’m getting used to prison. Christmas is just around the corner. When I was an executive I always had to work through the holidays. This year I can just relax and enjoy it! MadDawg even said he was getting me a Christmas present.

January 2007 – New Years
New Year’s was a blast compared to the disappointment of Christmas. That dress seemed more like a present for MadDawg than myself.

June 2009 – Released
I’m a free man and I swear to God I’m a changed man. I’m staying away from the corporate world and going into non-profit. Those pussies will never catch me in the act.
Greetings! If you're reading this then you’re a womyn or man who is considering the bold choice of living a cruelty free lifestyle. Though some may be critical of your new more harmonious existence, there are many excellent reasons to become a vegan:

- Because you object to the cruel treatment of animals
- To achieve a slightly healthier diet at great personal expense
- To impress the other lesbians
- Because you hate being happy
- Because your religion precludes you from being happy

Convinced? Of course you are! Welcome to our family. The first and most important thing to do is to congratulate yourself over and over again. The second step is to actually walk the walk. I WANT TO BE FIRED

By Danny Marshall

Lately, I’ve been wanting to get good and fired. It’s just one of those things that I want to try once before I die, like meth…again. I’ve been brainstorming ways. Here are a few:

1. Propose a ‘Cleanest Pussy in the Office’ contest
   Boss: [Holds up flier with a picture of a girl in a bikini smiling and bending over a fax machine. The header reads, ‘Cleanest Pussy in the Office Contest’ with the sub-header, ‘Find out if you’re Ms. Clean.’] What is this?
   Me: Oh yeah, you interested in entering?
   Boss: Dan, you know we can’t tolerate this kind of sexist behavior around here.
   Me: Did you just say ‘Sexiest Behavior?’ Because that’s a great idea for another contest.

2. Start talking like the Mark Wahlberg character from The Departed
   Me: [Entering room dressed like a cop, with a holster and a fake badge] Sorry I’m late.
   Boss: It’s ok.
   Me: I’m tired from fucking your wife.
   Boss: What?
   Me: My mom’s tired from fucking my dad.
   Boss: This is uncalled for.
   Me: Maybe. Maybe not. Maybe fuck yourself. My theory on Feds is they’re like mushrooms. Feed ‘em shit and keep in the dark. You girls have a nice day.

3. Only talk about the weekend
   Me: So how was your weekend?
   John: It’s Thursday and we’re in the middle of a company-wide conference call.
   Me: Mine was fucking wild.
   John: I know, you told everyone in the form of a company-wide email. [John brings up the email and reads] “I had a wild weekend. I fucked a teenager on Saturday and got drunk and played beach volleyball on Sunday. The cops are looking for me.”
   Me: Yep, I had a great weekend. So how was your weekend?

4. Take a really long lunch break
   Me: Well, I’m off to lunch.
   Co-worker: It’s 9 am.
   Me: Not in New York.
   [Later]
   Me: [Sets down coat on chair.] I’m back.
   Co-worker: You were gone for seven hours. It’s now 4 pm.
   Me: You’re right. I better get home for dinner.[Picks up coat and leaves.]

5. When someone asks you a question, respond with a Snapple ‘Real Fact’
   Boss: Are you ready for the meeting?
   Me: Frogs never drink.
   Boss: What? I need you to print out the documents. Ken Johnson is due in any second. Can you do that for me?
   Me: A hummingbird weighs less than a penny. [Ken Johnson walks in.]
   Boss: Ken, great to see you. Have you met Dan Marshall?
   Me: [Shaking Ken Johnson’s hand] Beavers can hold their breath for 45 minutes.

No smoke rock

JUST SAY NO TO EVERYTHING

Just tell your family you were doing snuff. They’ll understand.

Don’t Do Drugs: they will not make you warmer

Cocaine: ENJOY RESPONSIBLY

JUST SAY NO TO PILLS THAT ARE NOT FOOD IN PILL FORM.
California law stipulates that all convicted sex offenders must register their name and address with the state. However, many slip through the cracks in this system. By not technically breaking any laws, a few perverted, depraved individuals roam free and non-humiliated. As the campus’ shining beacon of morality, the Squelch is compelled to provide you with a list of UNREGISTERED SEX OFFENDERS

Name: Lizzy Klein
Age: 20
Infraction(s):
- Stuck finger in boyfriend’s ass before making sure it was cool with him first.
- It was not.
- Keeps getting yeast infections, which while not entirely her fault, is still pretty annoying and gross.
Precautions:
If around the Shattuck area, do not state that you might be into pegging after getting drunk a couple days before her birthday. Never again, man. Never again.

Name: Grant Pollard
Age: 18
Infraction(s):
- Blatantly masturbated in dorm room while roommate had obviously not gone to sleep yet.
- Masturbated to thought of female antagonist from High School Musical.
- DC++ profile filled exclusively with horrifying cartoon porn.
Precautions:
If you are a cute Asian girl who is into Playstation 3 and anime, continue to not exist in the general vicinity of Foothill.

Name: Aria Alger
Age: 12?
Infraction(s):
- Is hot.
- Flawless makeup and godly push-up bra.
Precautions:
Come on dude, keep it together dude.

Name: Alexis Cho
Age: 20
Description: Overly Liberated Asian Girl
Infraction(s):
- Leaves vibrator in dishwasher.
- Constantly claims to be bisexual because she made out with a girl at a party once.
Precautions:
Try not to remind her of men or women. Use gender-neutral pronouns/words. Reproduce through mitosis.

Name: Charlie
Age: 56 (dog years)
Description: Very bad boy
Infraction(s):
- Unwanted dry humping of pants legs.
- Lecherous drooling.
- Refusal to wear clothes in public.
Precautions:
Dog whistles, rape whistles, and dog-rape whistles should be carried at all times. Alternatively, suspect can be distracted by squirrels, which are available for free at most rape-prevention workshops.
